Entering a Zoom Meeting with “Sign In Required”

Who can enter a Zoom room

- Usually, anyone who obtains a link to (URL of) a Zoom meeting can enter it. E.g,
 - <https://zoom.us/j/87930791982?pwd=02adFaZkkF1kDWrVTFwal9QT09cMm1cU> (w/ password)
 - <https://zoom.us/j/87930791982> (w/o password)
- Either case, all you need is a URL

Zoom rooms that require “sign in”

- To secure a meeting, the meeting host can
 - require participants to sign in Zoom
 - with a specific domain (e.g., @g.ecc.u-tokyo.ac.jp)
- With concerns about Zoom security rising, increasingly more lectures are going to use this feature
- So students need to be prepared

How a host can set up a meeting with sign-in-required

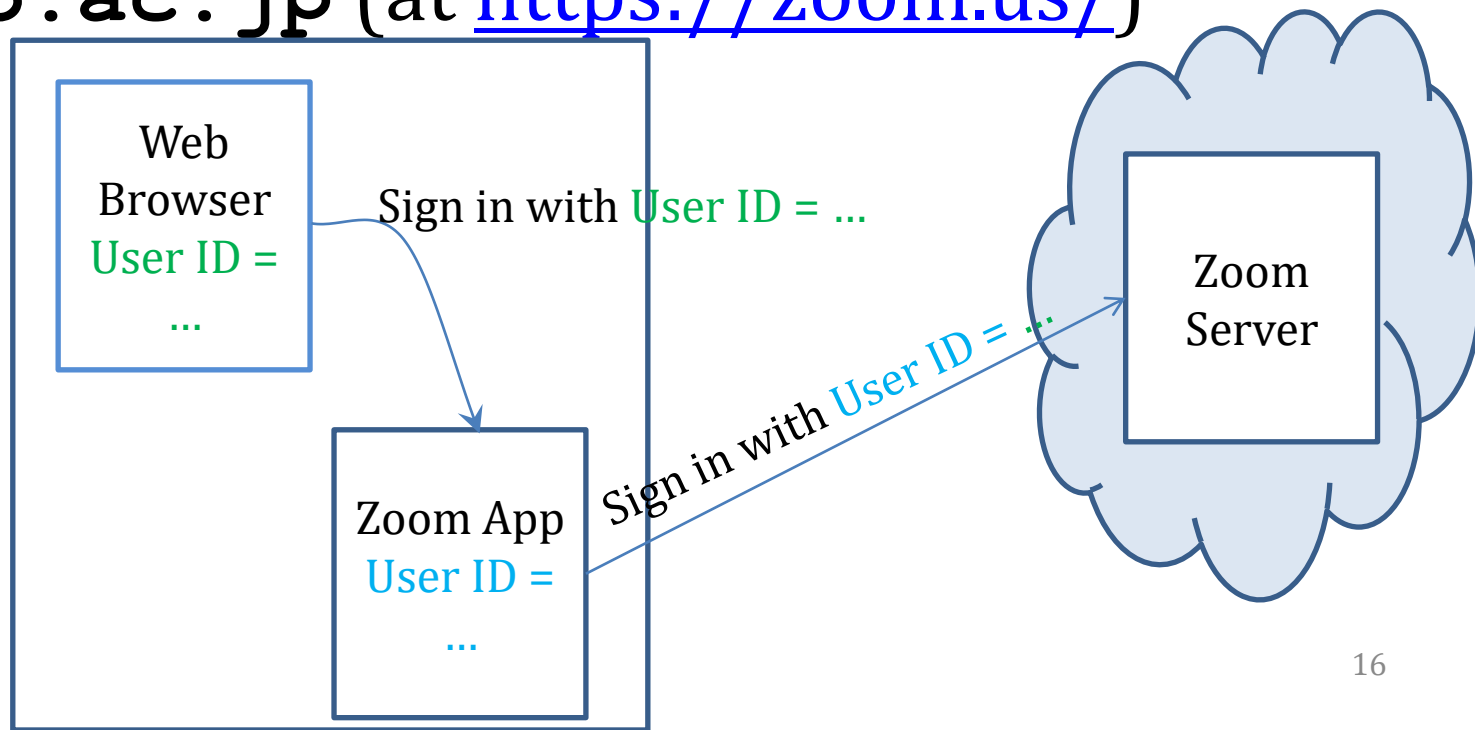

- Students do not have to know this, but to help you better understand how it works ...

A test room

- This page <https://itc-lms.ecc.u-tokyo.ac.jp/lms/course/syllabus?idnumber=20197J919010V02> has a link to a meeting that requires sign in with g.ecc.u-tokyo.ac.jp

Web browser and apps

- Recommendation: always join a meeting by clicking a link from a web browser and stay signed in with your 10-digit-ID@g.ecc.u-tokyo.ac.jp (at <https://zoom.us/>)

Web browser and apps

- A browser presumably transfers its sign-in status to the underlying Zoom app
- Details may depend and it is the account the Zoom app uses that ultimately matters
